Narin, who buried her traumatic childhood and managed to start over in the big city as a lawyer, encounters with her high-school sweetheart in the most unexpected place, after 13 years since she deserted her poor hometown and her abusive family. That encounter forces her to reconcile with her past and search for her family.

"The Mercy" is the merciless life story of Narin who managed to hold on to life against humiliation, violence and hunger playing the big sister role for her sisters and brother at her young age. Her persistence to go to school and study, the emotional wall she built to protect herself and her hope for the future, helped her to move out of the village and built a life from scratch. Even though her story coming to big city was quite complicated, somehow, she created her own chances, and she found a shelter upon her arrival.

Meeting Deniz who is a lonely girl from upper class, changed Narin's life positively and they became very close in time like sisters. Narin turned out to be a promising lawyer. She secretly stalks her abusive father's life with his family and the devastating fact is that he is a great father now. Depressed and sad Narin's life will become even more complicated with Irmak's arrival with her fiancé - the love of Narin from her long-lost past. Deniz has a jealous and spoiled sister Irmak who decides to return to Istanbul by relinquishing her comfortable and luxurious life in Switzerland. Now Irmak wants her sister Deniz for herself and does not enjoy Deniz and Narin's sisterhood like friendship. The law firm she works for is after her old lover Firat, and deep inside she knows he is innocent. She finds herself on the verge of a cliff, either to lose everything she made happen in her merciless life or to bring the puzzles of her foggy past together.
